

INTRODUCTION

The Oxford Innovation Society was formed in 1990. Since then over 100 companies have benefited from the unique access which the Society provides to the University's world-leading innovative research and researchers which membership provides.

The Oxford Innovation Society enables businesses from all sectors to have a window on Oxford science and technology. Members enjoy a wide range of benefits, tailored to meet individual and current strategic business requirements.

Current Members are drawn from industry (engineering, healthcare, materials, life and physical science technology companies) and the professions (patents, banks, accountants, lawyers). The Membership contains global multinationals and local firms, based around the world: USA, Japan, Europe, Asia.

The Oxford Innovation Society is managed by Isis Innovation Ltd, the University of Oxford's wholly owned technology transfer company. Isis manages the University's intellectual property portfolio, working with University researchers on identifying, protecting and marketing technologies through licensing, spin-out company formation, consulting and material sales. Isis works on projects from all areas of the University's research activities: life sciences, physical sciences, social sciences and humanities.

The Society holds regular dinner meetings for its Members, which provide a unique environment for constructive interaction between business leaders, investors and leading University scientists. Isis develops close working relationships with Members, providing continual access to innovation opportunities with Oxford researchers and amongst Members.

We welcome you as Members of the Oxford Innovation Society.
